WEDDING VIDEO DETAILS

1. Pre-ceremony coverage: videographer(s) will arrive about 2 hours before your ceremony to prepare and cover pre-ceremony action with 1 video camera. We try to ask the bride & groom, separately of course, to share something on camera if they're acceptable at a reasonable time before the ceremony. During this time we may capture creative shots like time lapse or slider shots. We also use this time to setup for the ceremony.
2. Ceremony coverage with 3 video cameras (more or less) and 2 videographers (more or less). Almost any number of cameras may be used and manned depending on our particular agreement and other situational factors. Ceremony cameras usually stay on a fluid head tripod. We usually use two cameras in the front and one or two in the back middle. We may use a wireless pin mic on the groom and/or preacher and/or a separate audio capturing device near the alter or elsewhere.
3. Reception coverage with at least 1 video camera manned. The videographer usually goes to the reception immediately after the ceremony to work on getting feedback/comments, etc. from your guest. We work to cover all the highlights of your reception as well (announcements, first dance, cake cutting, bouquet toss, etc...) depending on the timing of events. We may wrap up with asking the bride and groom to share something together to the camera for a nice closing shot/final touch.

AFTER YOUR BIG DAY

After the event everything is transferred to computer for editing. The post production phase usually takes over 20 hours spread out over approximately a 2 week period. While we may do it quicker we like to take our time and not rush creativity so we it may occasionally take longer, esp. if it's a busy season.

You're wedding video may have title pages, wedding theme transitions, and effects. Transitions from one scene/camera to another are generally subtle fades that do not distract from the actual event. Other effects may include animations, effect, and/or split screens to show action that may be occurring simultaneously (e.g. a singer on one side of the screen and the Bride and Groom on the other).

If your reception is very dark we may add lightening to ensure our best coverage of your event. Usually this just involves an on camera dimmable, bi-color video light and/or asking the DJ to turn up the lights just a little bit.

ADD YOUR OWN SPICE

You may add your own spice at the intro of the video, reception, or on the menu page by having us include something special. You may include your own song that you perform, a special menu or intro picture, engagement or concept video, etc. Just be sure to you have permission from the copyright holder from anything you want to include that isn't yours! Sometimes we'll us the "program" from the wedding to include the wedding party in rolling credits at the end of the ceremony scene.
